DECORATION METHODS

UV-DTF

It involves transferring a UV print from a film onto any smooth surface, creating a glossy 3D effect. It's perfect for personalising glass, metal, plastic, and other materials.

PAD PRINTING

It is a marking technique in which ink is transferred from an engraved plate onto an object using a flexible silicone pad, allowing for precise printing even on uneven surfaces.

Beauty is in the eye of the beholder.

UV360

It is a UV printing technique that allows graphics to be applied all around (360°) cylindrical objects, such as bottles, mugs, or thermoses, while maintaining full colour and high print durability.

SCREEN PRINTING

It is a printing technique in which ink is pushed through a special mesh (stencil) only in the areas of the design, allowing prints to be created even on large surfaces.

UV PRINTING

It is a direct printing technique cured with UV light, providing high durability, abrasion resistance, and excellent colour reproduction on various materials.

SUBLIMATION

It is a printing technique in which dye, under high temperature, penetrates the structure of the material, allowing the creation of multicoloured graphics with smooth tonal transitions and striking gradients.

ENGRAVING

A marking technique that involves permanently removing a layer of material using a laser, creating a precise and elegant effect. It is used on a variety of materials, such as metal, glass, wood, leather, and silicone.

DTF (DIRECT TO FILM)

It is a technique in which a digital print is first printed onto a special film and then transferred onto a material using a heat press, creating a durable, multicoloured design on fabrics and other surfaces.

EMBOSSING

It is a marking technique that involves pressing a design into a material (e.g., leather, paper, cardboard, or plastics) using a matrix and pressure, creating a concave or convex effect.
